

II. INTRODUCTION

Mission Statement:

The Maury County Health Council is to act as an independent advisory organization whose purpose is to facilitate the availability and affordability of quality health care within the South Central Tennessee Public Health Region.

Definition of Community Diagnosis:

A simple definition used by the North Carolina State Center for Health and Environmental Statistics of a community diagnosis is “a means of examining aggregate health and social statistics, liberally spiced with knowledge of the local situation in order to determine the health needs of the community.” By using this definition, we acknowledge that significant input from residents of the local area is essential to performing a community diagnosis effectively. Although a great deal of quantified health data can be obtained from the State, the process will only be successful if local citizens are fully involved and are comfortable with the eventual findings. This is why the formation and effective utilization of county health councils are vital in achieving accurate results.

Maury County, Tennessee was the final county initiated to the Community Diagnosis process in the South Central Region. Community members formed the council in February 1999. Everyone present was given the opportunity to become a member of the Maury County Health Council by indicating their interest on a questionnaire provided by the Community Development staff. They were also encouraged to nominate any community member who might be interested in serving on such a council. The Council elected to meet on the third Tuesday of each month.

The first meeting was scheduled for March 16, 1999. In May, the Council elected Dannylu Wilson, registered nurse, to serve as Chairman and Barbara Heier, an educator, as Vice Chair. The Health Council completed their community diagnosis and began a community assessment in June 1999. The Community Development staff analyzed and prepared health data from several sources for the review of the Health Council. A survey was distributed throughout the community, and the regional Community Development staff tabulated the results. The survey was designed to measure the perception of Maury
